

Peking University School of Transnational Law General Guidelines for Study Abroad

Application and Selection Process

Students who wish to be considered for study abroad opportunities must submit a complete Application to the Office of International Programs (OIP). Please refer to the International Exchange Application for STL Students document for specific instructions. The Application should demonstrate how the proposed study abroad is thoughtfully related to a student's educational and professional goals.

Applications are submitted during Quarter 2 of the academic year that precedes the beginning of the study abroad term (either the Fall or Spring semester of the following academic year). Exact application deadlines vary each year and are announced by the OIP.

Most STL students study abroad as 3Ls. STL students are not permitted to study abroad in their 1L and 2L years because of the interruption that would result in their required coursework.

Applications are forwarded to a nomination committee comprised of STL professors. Nominations are made primarily based on the strength of a student's academic record and the thoughtfulness of the student's Application, particularly his or her personal statements. Nominations are then forwarded to each host school. Host schools reserve the right to review student applications and make the final admission decision.

Policy on Study Abroad During the 4L Year

Peking University regulations prohibit study abroad within three months of a student's graduation date. In practice, this means that 4L students are not eligible to study abroad during their final semester before graduation. Therefore, while 4L students are generally eligible to participate in STL's study abroad programs, they may only participate through one of the following scenarios:

- (1) during the Fall semester of their 4L year, but students need to accept the risk that there may be credit transfer issues that affect graduation;
- (2) during the Spring semester of their 4L year, but only if they delay their graduation.

While abroad, 4L students continue to be responsible for any obligations related to the completion of their thesis.

Requirements for Transfer of Credit

Students may receive credit toward their J.D. degree for coursework completed in a study abroad program. The following requirements apply to the transfer of credit:

1. The overseas courses must be graduate- or master's-level law school courses. Without prior advance approval of the OIP, transfer credit shall not be awarded for undergraduate-level law school courses or for courses that were offered by other departments of the host school.
2. Within the sole judgment of the Director of International Programs, the overseas courses must not duplicate courses previously taken at STL. It is the student's responsibility to present sufficient information (e.g., course descriptions, syllabi) to establish that the overseas courses do not duplicate courses previously taken at STL.

Please note that some host schools require exchange students to enroll in certain courses. If it is determined that a required overseas course duplicates a course previously taken at STL, the student may still be eligible to receive transfer credit.

3. Students must satisfactorily complete their overseas course requirements with passing grades as determined by the grading system of the host school. For more information on the grading system of a particular host school, please refer to the summaries contained below in the Opportunities Available section of this document.

As documentation of their grades, students must submit a copy of their overseas transcript to the Director of International Programs.

4. Students must complete and submit to the Director of International Programs a final report on their study abroad experience. For more information, please see the Study Abroad Final Report Instructions document in the Office of International Programs. The final report is due no later than three weeks after the conclusion of your study abroad term.
5. For all programs, the maximum transferrable credit is 25 STL credits.

Credit for overseas courses is recorded course-by-course on the STL transcript on a mandatory pass/fail basis. In other words, overseas courses appear on each student's STL transcript one-by-one as separate entries, each with an indication of P (for pass) or F (for fail).

The amount of transfer credit is determined by a ratio of teaching hours per credit at the host school and teaching hours per credit at STL. For more information on the ratio of a particular host school, please refer to the summaries contained below in the Opportunities Available section of this document. Because of rounding effects, the actual amount of transfer credit may differ slightly from the amount that would be produced using a unitary calculation. Please note that the maximum credits that can be transferred for one course is no more than 3 credits.

At AMU – 10 class-hours are equivalent to 1 STL credit.

At Bucerius, Center for Transnational Legal Studies, Indiana, Iowa, and Miami – 1 credit at the host school is roughly equivalent to 1.3 STL credits.

A 1-credit course transfers back to STL as a 1-credit course (rounded down from 1.3 credits) and a 2-credit course transfers back to STL as a 3-credit course (rounded up from 2.6 credits).

At Fundacao Getulio Vargas, 1 credit at the host school is roughly equivalent to 1.6 STL credits.

After rounding, a 1-credit course transfers back to STL as a 2-credit course, a 2-credit course transfers back to STL as a 3-credit course.

At EBS, Tel Aviv and Lausanne, 1 credit at the host school is roughly equivalent to 1 STL credit. Therefore, no rounding is necessary, and courses at the host school transfer back to STL for an equal number of credits.

Answers to Frequently Asked Questions

1. To be eligible for study abroad, a student must be in good academic standing and ordinarily not have been the subject of prior disciplinary action, academic censure, probation or suspension. If you have been the subject of prior disciplinary action, academic censure, probation or suspension, you should consult the OIP about your eligibility.
2. During their study abroad term, students are not permitted to enroll in any courses offered at STL.
3. During their study abroad term, students continue to pay STL tuition.
4. During the school year, students should ordinarily limit their study abroad term to one semester.
5. Based on the academic calendar of some host schools, a study abroad term may happen to overlap with a quarter at STL. In this scenario, a student shall not enroll in any STL course offered that quarter for which the student will have an excessive number of absences as a result of the study abroad.
6. Though the study abroad offices of our partner schools can provide assistance, it is the ultimate responsibility of each student (1) to secure the necessary visa for entry and residence; (2) reserve and pay for round-trip air travel; and (3) locate and reserve housing in the host country.
7. For all programs, students must be able to demonstrate access to health insurance coverage for the full duration of their study abroad term. Students may be able to secure coverage under a Chinese insurance plan or a plan offered in the host country. Students are advised to consult with each host school for more information.
8. STL reserves the right to restrict students from attending programs in areas where there may be security risks, even if the student had been previously approved for attendance.
9. Some programs require that students submit documentation regarding their financial ability to study abroad. This financial certification process can be time-consuming since the student needs to compile evidence of guaranteed funding such as bank letters and bank statements. Financial certifications can vary with each host school. The following certification amounts, taken from recent years, are provided for reference only:

Bucerius Law School: 3000 Euro

University of Indiana: US$6,347

When applying to study abroad, students must be aware of this potential certification requirement and note that scholarships are rarely available.

10. During their study abroad term, students are enrolled as non-degree students at the host school.

Notwithstanding this rule, some host schools (e.g., Iowa, Miami) allow students to apply credit earned during a study abroad term toward future study in a LLM program (to commence after the student graduates from STL). This helps reduce the time and cost for students to earn advanced law degrees from the host school. Students are advised to consult with each host school for more specific information.
